SUMMARY STATEMENT

Lidia Del Piccolo is a Full Professor of Clinical Psychology at the Department of Neuroscience, Biomedicine, and Movement Sciences at the University of Verona. Since 2014, she has been the Chief of the Clinical Psychology Unit at Verona University Hospital.

She contributed to the creation and standardization of different measures that evaluate emotional expression and doctor-patient communication during medical consultations (the Verona Medical Interview Classification System, VR-MICS; the Verona patient-centered Communication Evaluation Scale, VR-COPE; the Verona Coding for Emotional Sequences, VR-CODES), which she also applied in research. She also published numerous papers in applied clinical psychology and psychotherapy.

Since 2001, she has taught Clinical Psychology and Clinical Communication in Health Sciences for undergraduate and resident students attending the Faculty of Medicine and students attending different health sciences courses (speech therapists, midwives, rehabilitation therapists) at the University of Verona. Since 2001, she has worked as a Clinical Psychologist and Cognitive Behavioral Psychotherapist at the Mental Health Department of Verona Hospital.

Professor Lidia Del Piccolo has published 120 full papers and six chapters, two of which were published by invitation in international books, and a book: Del Piccolo L. "Competenze per comunicare con i pazienti" Ed. Piccin. 2015 Padova (Italian translation of J. Silverman, S. Kurtz, J. Draper, "Skills for communicating with patients" Ingram; 3rd edition, 2013).
